Wigdor LLP Represents Verizon Employees In Two Wage And Hour Class Action Lawsuits

July 16, 2015 • News & Press

Mike Mozart / Flickr / CC BY 2.0

Wigdor LLP has been retained to represent the plaintiffs in two separate class action wage and hour lawsuits against Verizon. Each lawsuit alleges that the telecommunications company misclassified different categories of employees as "managers" even though they were not true managers under the law because the employees lacked any meaningful supervisory responsibility, among other reasons. This misclassification placed our clients and other employees incorrectly as "exempt" employees, which meant Verizon did not pay these employees overtime compensation as required by law. As class actions, these lawsuits seek to secure relief for all Verizon employees who are similarly situated to the class representatives."

Verizon Accused Of Misclassifying Employees To Avoid OT"
July 16, 2015
Read online
Read PDF

View the Complaints
Brancato v. Verizon New York, Inc.
Read PDF

Haas v. Verizon New York, Inc.
Read PDF

Dillon v. Verizon New York, Inc.
Read PDF