

Pregnancy Discrimination And Retaliation At Deutsche Bank

September 20, 2011 • News & Press

Wigdor LLP represented Kelley Voelker, a former Vice President at Deutsche Bank, who was fired after filing a pregnancy discrimination lawsuit. Ms. Voelker's lawsuit, which received press attention and notoriety when it was first filed in federal court, details her efforts to break through the Bank's glass ceiling, overcome "mommy-tracking," and obtain a long-overdue promotion. After being told that nobody in her group would be affected by layoffs at the Bank, Ms. Voelker was informed, after she complained just weeks prior about further retaliation, that she was the only employee from her group among the approximately 500 employees to be affected as part of this supposedly wide-ranging reduction in force.

Law 360

"Deutsche Bank, Ex-Worker Spar In 'Mommy Track' Bias Case"

April 27, 2015

Read PDF

Daily Mail

"Former Deutsche Bank VP Sues a Second Time After She Was 'Fired for Claiming She Was Demoted for Having a Baby' "

September 20, 2012

Read PDF

Law 360

"Deutsche Worker Says She Was Axed Over 'Mommy-Track' Suit"

September 19, 2012

Read PDF

ABC News

"Deutsche Bank Accused of Retaliation After Firing VP Who Sued for Being 'Mommy-Tracked'"

September 19, 2012

Read PDF

Reuters

"Deutsche Bank VP Says Fired in Retaliation for Bias Case"

September 19, 2012

Read PDF

ABC News

"Deutsche Bank VP Sues for Being 'Mommy-Tracked'"

September 14, 2011

Read PDF

Reuters

"Deutsche Bank VP Sues, Alleges Bias Over Pregnancy"

September 12, 2011

Read PDF

Law 360

"Mommy-Track' Claims Against Deutsche Bank Called Solid"

January 16, 2015

Read Online

Read PDF