

Firm Files Sexual Harassment Lawsuit Against Twenty First Century Fox

December 14, 2016 • News & Press

Wigdor LLP currently represents Fox5 reporter, Lidija Curanaj, in a lawsuit against parent company Twenty First Century Fox. In a complaint filed on December 13, 2016, the firm alleges that the misogynistic environment at the Fox affiliate saw Ms. Curanaj denied a full time position, told that she was “not attractive enough” and discriminated against because of her perceived nationality as Albanian. The complaint further alleges that Ms. Curanaj was told in an interview with Roger Ailes, that female presenters should “look good from head to toe.” Mr Ailes was removed from his position as chairman of Fox News Channel in July, following allegations of sexual harassment.

The New York Times

“Fox Faces New Lawsuit Claiming Harassment by Roger Ailes”

December 13, 2016

Read Online

Read PDF

Daily News

“Fox 5 reporter accuses Roger Ailes of making her stand and twirl so he ‘could see her from behind’ in lawsuit against the company”

December 13, 2016

Read Online

Read PDF

New York Magazine

“New Lawsuit Alleges Roger Ailes Sexually Harassed a Fox 5 Reporter”

December 13, 2016

Read Online

Read PDF

Mediaite

“Reporter Files Lawsuit Against 21st Century Fox Alleging Harassment from Roger Ailes”

December 13, 2016

Read Online

Read PDF

The Hollywood Reporter

“Fox Reporter Claims Harassment by Roger Ailes in Discrimination Lawsuit”

December 13, 2016

Read Online

Read PDF

Daily Mail

"EXCLUSIVE: Veteran news reporter says she was denied a job at Fox News after Roger Ailes called her SENATOR ex-boyfriend following her interview to ask 'how's the sex?' and if she would 'put out'"

December 13, 2016

Read Online

Read PDF